Proposed topics for Congressional briefings:

1. Training Support to other USIB Agencies - Emphasis on close cordial relations achieved by rather substantial effort for the Defense Intelligence School, Special Forces, Foreign Services Institute, etc.

2. CT Program - A "Career Staffing" program designed to select, train, and place individuals who possess good potential for long-term career development.

3. Specialized Training for CTs - How CTs after taking "Common Core" course go into the Operations Course, the Intelligence Production Course, or Support Services Course according to directorate assignments.

4. Unique Character of Many Training Programs - Why the Agency must often provide in-house programs conducted by job experienced personnel rather than teachers.

5. Unusual Conditions Imposed by Operational Security - Why security and compartmentation necessitate more personnel and time.

6. Covert Training - Tailored programs for friendly foreign intelligence services and agent personnel conducted here and abroad to fit specific operational needs.

7. Communism: Fact and Fiction - Problems of judgment and evaluation in teaching Communism.

9. Management Training - The introduction of the "Managerial Grid" and Pilot Project in the Office of Finance.

10. Language training - with statistics of no. trained in different languages.

Don't believe Congress interested in cordiality. Believe emphasis should be on CIA being considered experts and asked to give training. We do not have to sell.

I. CIA SUBCOMMITTEES

There are four congressional committees to whom the Central Intelligence Agency is directly responsible--the Armed Services and Appropriations Committees of the Senate and the House. The chairmen of these four Committees are also the chairmen of the four Subcommittees which they have established for Central Intelligence Agency matters. Membership on the Subcommittees is generally determined on the basis of seniority on the full Committees. The membership of these Subcommittees is attached as Tab A.

The vacancy on the Senate Armed Services Subcommittee, created by the retirement of Senator Harry Flood Byrd, has been filled by the appointment of Senator Stuart Symington. Senator Symington has already demonstrated that he will be an active and enthusiastic member.

Senator Leverett Saltonstall, the sole Republican member of the Senate Armed Services Subcommittee, has announced his intention to retire from the Congress upon the expiration of his term in 1966. It will be necessary, therefore, for the Chairman to give attention to the matter of Republican representation on the Subcommittee. Senator Saltonstall is also a member of the Senate Appropriations CIA Subcommittee. His retirement will elevate Senator Milton Young to the position of ranking Republican on that CIA Subcommittee in 1967.

Consistent with past practice, the Agency will continue to meet periodically with the four CIA Subcommittees, on a weekly basis if possible. From the very beginning of his tenure as Director, Admiral Raborn announced his intention to maintain close and continuing contact with the CIA Subcommittees. In his statement at the confirmation hearings before the Senate Armed Services Committee he said:

"It is my intent to keep the CIA Subcommittee fully and currently informed of those matters under my jurisdiction. I believe it essential for a Director of Central Intelligence not only to keep the members up to date on intelligence matters but also to be fully responsive to their needs and questions.

"I am fully aware that there will be matters concerning which the members would not have the occasion to query me, either through not knowing of a particular situation or for other reasons. However, I conceive of it as my responsibility to bring to the attention of the members those matters on which I believe they should be informed. I believe that the interests of this country are served by a continuing program of the Central Intelligence Agency keeping the members informed, not only of intelligence information but also as to the activities, programs, and organization of the CIA itself."

In 1965, the House Appropriations CIA Subcommittee examined the Agency budget in considerably more detail than in the past. Two members of the Subcommittee subsequently visited the Agency and over a two-day period reviewed the Agency's budgetary program and fiscal procedures. It is anticipated that this Subcommittee will examine the Agency's fiscal program even more thoroughly in 1966. We welcome this type of close contact and scrutiny of the Agency's fiscal activities.

It is our conviction that the more informed these and other responsible members of the Congress become, the more impressed they become with the professionalism of our people and the competence of our organization.

As in the past, Agency briefings of the CIA Subcommittees will be conducted without stenographic transcripts and under controlled security conditions. A technical security sweep is made of the Committee hearing room in advance of each hearing and security monitoring is conducted during the hearing to determine if electronic devices might be in operation in the vicinity of the briefing area.

In keeping with his confirmation statement to keep our Subcommittee members informed on the activities, programs and organization of the Agency itself, the Director has determined that agenda will be prepared for each briefing of our Subcommittee and they will include information on Agency programs and activities, organization of the Agency, its position in the intelligence community and in the Government hierarchy. He has directed that the Deputy Directorates submit suggested items for these agenda covering aspects of their respective components which will be informative and useful in accomplishing his stated objective. Topics will be selected and briefings will then be prepared on a phased basis. At the end of 1966, our Subcommittee members should have an improved insight of the Agency and its functions.

Thus far the House Armed Services Subcommittee is the only Subcommittee of the four which has included information regarding Agency briefings in its annual report. In 1965, the Committee report included topical statements on areas covered by the Agency in its briefings of the CIA Subcommittee. We propose to explore the possibility of having the other CIA Subcommittees also include in their annual reports information of an unclassified nature with regard to their oversight and review of the Agency.

II. OTHER COMMITTEES

A. Briefings

In addition to the briefings given CIA Subcommittees, the Agency will continue to provide appropriate briefings to selected committees having a legitimate need for specific intelligence information in order to fulfill their legislative responsibilities. To this end, the Agency customarily provides the full Armed Services Committees of the House and Senate and the Defense Subcommittee of House Appropriations with substantive intelligence briefings on military programs of the Soviet Union, Communist China, and Communist Bloc countries. These briefings are provided in conjunction with the Department of Defense posture hearings conducted by these Committees. For the first time last year, special security information was fully surfaced to these Committees, with the prior approval of the three Committee chairmen and the President. These briefings were supplemented by the use of Vu-graphs and photographs from overhead reconnaissance in addition to more conventional visual aids. They were received with enthusiasm by the Committees. Several members commented that they were extremely useful in giving them a better understanding as to the scope of the Soviet threat.

Periodic briefings will continue to be given to the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy. The briefings cover detailed intelligence on the atomic energy and missile programs of all foreign governments and includes information at the highest security levels. It is anticipated that the Joint Committee, as well as the Senate Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee will request briefings early in the congressional session. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy and the Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee all have certain interests and responsibilities with respect to the nuclear test ban treaty.

The Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee has responsibility for assuring that there is a continuing review of the adequacy of the nuclear detection systems established by the United States as part of the treaty safeguards. A Special Subcommittee on Nuclear Test Ban Treaty Safeguards was designated to carry out this responsibility. Senator Henry M. Jackson, Chairman of this Subcommittee as well as the Subcommittee on Military Applications of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, undoubtedly will desire briefings of these two Subcommittees. Senator Jackson has been one of the most active senators in his consideration of the issues involved in the test ban treaty and regards CIA as the primary authority and source of information in the nuclear detection field. An all-source briefing of these combined Subcommittees was presented at a joint meeting last August and was very well received.

The Chairman of the Senate Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee again has requested briefings on Soviet space programs and arrangements have been made for an informal meeting with selected members of this Committee in mid-January. As in the case of the Department of Defense posture briefings, these members have expressed the importance of briefings on Soviet space programs to their review of U.S. space programs. No stenographic transcript is made.

It is anticipated that the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees will again ask the Agency for world situation briefings. Consideration of these requests will be given in consultation with the Department of State and other agencies as well as with the White House. The State Department will be alerted to the briefings and made aware of the subject matter to be covered.

~~SECRET~~

SECRETII. OTHER COMMITTEES

B. Liaison

In addition to our briefings of the foregoing Committees, close liaison will be maintained with a number of other committees and their staffs and informal assistance will be provided as appropriate. We have agreed to assist the Joint Economic Committee by providing professional studies on a number of aspects of the Soviet economy. The material, which will be included in the Committee's published survey, will be used without attribution to the Agency.

Contacts will be maintained with the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee and the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Both of these Committees are intensely interested in publishing any unclassified information which can be provided by defectors and Cuban refugees on the nature of the Communist conspiracy and the threat it poses to the free world.

Liaison will continue with a number of other selected congressional committees. In some instances, such as the House and Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committees, this will be done to ensure that Agency interests are protected in any Committee actions in the personnel and salary adjustment fields. Close contact also will be maintained with other committees, such as Senator Edward V. Long's Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights and Representative John E. Moss' Subcommittee on Government Information, in an effort to preclude inadvertent or other disclosure of information which would be detrimental to the Agency.

Arrangements have been made to provide Senator Henry M. Jackson's Subcommittee on National Security and International Operations with material on Soviet political considerations which might have an effect on the conduct of its nuclear testing program. This is being done at the Subcommittee's request and as a continuation of a long-standing arrangement which began with the provision of substantial studies on the Soviet and Communist Chinese policy machinery. Although written by CIA, these studies have been published under the imprimatur of the Subcommittee and have been widely acclaimed in professional circles.

SECRET

SECTION III
CONGRESSIONAL VISITS

SECRETIII. CONGRESSIONAL VISITS

The Agency will continue to maintain frequent contact with members of the Congress who are favorably disposed toward the Agency, many of whom are anxious to be of assistance whenever possible. We also will continue to cultivate new contacts with other members whenever a "target of opportunity" presents itself. We are particularly interested in establishing good relationships with some of the more responsible new members who will ultimately assume senior roles in the Congress. Individual members and groups will be invited to breakfast, luncheon or other sessions with the Director and other senior Agency officials. Individual members, staff personnel and informal groups such as the SOS Club, the ACORNS, the Wednesday Club and others will be included. It has been our experience that members who are adequately informed concerning our activities and mission are usually well-disposed toward the Agency. In addition, this direct contact with senior CIA officers causes these members to formulate an appreciation of the professionalism of our people. They have a better understanding of the problems which the Agency encounters and frequently offer to provide assistance and support whenever possible.

LEGISLATION

SECRETIV. LEGISLATION

In the early years of the Agency's existence, there was little need for the enactment of specific legislation to amend our existing statutes or to initiate legislation to cover our specific needs. However, certain of the Agency's statutory authorities have become obsolete and unduly restrictive. Therefore, it is now necessary periodically to revise and update those statutes which set forth the authorities of the Agency and of the Director and those upon which certain Agency personnel and administrative programs and practices are founded. Five specific legislative items initiated by CIA will be considered by the Congress in 1966 (Tab B). Two proposals were approved by the Bureau of the Budget and transmitted to the Congress during the First Session. They are;

a. An amendment to the Central Intelligence Agency Act of 1949 which would remove Agency consultants from the $50 per diem restrictions of the National Security Act of 1947 and permit payment of rates comparable to those paid by other agencies (Tab 1); and

b. An amendment to the CIA Retirement Act of 1964 which would give to persons retiring under the CIA Retirement Act similar benefits to those provided under the Daniels bill for civil service retirees and under military pay legislation for military retirees during the First Session of the 89th Congress (Tab 2).

Another proposal introduced during the First Session of the 89th Congress, at the instance of the Agency, would provide income tax relief for disability retirees under the CIA Retirement Act (Tab 3). The Bureau of the Budget has not yet cleared the Agency's report to the Congress on this bill.

A Central Intelligence Agency legislative proposal has been prepared for submission to the Congress, upon Bureau of the Budget approval. The provisions proposed are primarily concerned with updating certain medical and travel benefits for CIA employees. Several new authorities relating to both the Central Intelligence Agency Act of 1949 and the CIA Retirement Act of 1964 are also included (Tab 4).

Action has also been initiated on a bill to make it a crime to use the name or initials of the Agency in any advertisement or in any other way without Agency approval. This bill is similar to existing provisions of law protecting the Federal Bureau of Investigation and certain other agencies (Tab 5).

The Legislative Counsel will continue to support, through appropriate means, several legislative proposals which were introduced in the First Session of the 89th Congress and which are still pending:

b. An amendment to the Sick and Annual Leave Act which would provide rehabilitation leave for Agency employees injured in situations such as the Saigon bombing;

c. An amendment to the Immigration and Naturalization Act which would liberalize the physical presence requirements of employees of certain Agency proprietaries;

d. An amendment to the Federal Employee Compensation Act (FECA) which would remove or increase the present dollar limitation on death and disability payments and to grant CIA Retirement Act retirees FECA benefits equivalent to those presently granted Civil Service retirees.

In addition, two draft amendments to the Immigration and Naturalization Act to authorize an unlimited re-entry period and to preserve the residence of an Agency employee's spouse are now being reviewed by the House Judiciary Committee. We plan to have them included by amendments to bills already before the Congress.

In the past, a number of private relief bills have been introduced at our instance and undoubtedly similar bills will be introduced during the Second Session of the 89th Congress.

In addition to pursuing the Central Intelligence Agency's legislative program, we will continue to screen all legislative proposals in the Congress to identify specific items of interest to the Agency and to bring them to the attention of Agency officials having an interest and responsibility in the particular field involved. This function is essential for the protection of Agency interests and has also been of value to various Agency officials in keeping them informed of developments in their particular substantive fields. We will also undoubtedly receive the usual number of requests from congressional committees and the Bureau of the Budget for Agency views on proposed legislation and will initiate appropriate communications and measures to protect Agency interests when it appears that proposed legislation may place them in jeopardy.
